News Round - short news stories from the past year.

On the Road- Kayaking- In May 2002, three of Dyke TV's producers packed their camera bags, hopped in a borrowed car, and drove off in search of the many ways to be queer in these so-called United States. You can see their adventures and the dykes they met on this show, in special segments called Dyke TV on the Road.

Now, from Dyke TV on the Road, a trip to Missoula, Montana. In this scenic segment, some Missoula lesbians and Dyke TV learn a little about kayaking on the Flat Head River. Enjoy the scenery and the safety lesson.

Arts-No Secret Anymore-

Del Martin and Phyllis Lyon. Founders of the Daughters of Bilitis, the first public lesbian organization in the country. Publishers of the Ladder, a newsletter that celebrated lesbian love and kept women connected in McCarthy's America. Lovers for the past 50 years and more. In our Arts segment, we take a look at a film due to be released in 2002, No Secret Anymore, The Times of Del Martin and Phyllis Lyon. Dyke TV brings you excerpts from this moving film; and an interview with filmmaker Joan Byron about two incredibly courageous community leaders and her own reasons for documenting their lives and work.

News and Commentary with Ann Northrop

On The Road-Arson in Missoula- Missoula, Montana. Population 57,000.. Home to the University of Montana and quite a lot of lesbians. A pretty town that prides itself on its sense of community and liberal attitudes. And, in February, 2002, the scene of a vicious hate crime that has some Missoula lesbians asking what lies beneath "the thin veneer of tolerance."

- Put on the site

Eyewitness- FIERCE-In New York City's Greenwich Village, the Christopher Street Pier had a long gay history. A particularly popular hangout for queer youth, many of them of color, and many homeless, the pier has now been torn down by order of New York City and New York State to make room for the Hudson River Park. And an increased police presence and affluent West Village homeowners associations have kept up the pressure on these displaced young people. But the kids are fighting back. Next up on Dyke TV, an interview with FIERCE, which stands for Fierce, Independent, Educated Radicals for Community Empowerment.

On The Road-Cooking-

You know, it can be hard to find a good home-cooked meal when you're on the road. While taking a pit stop in Denver, producer Anat Salomon decided to take matters into her own hands and prepare her own birthday feast. It's worth watching this segment not only for the recipes, but also for the chance to hear Anat say, "Sose." Enjoy Cooking in Colorado!

News and Commentary with Ann Northrop

On The Road- Love Makes a Family- As the debate rages on over the rights of lesbians, gay men and trans people to raise their children, Dyke TV talks to a Portland, Oregon organization concerned about the effects of homophobia on those children. Love, they want their kids to remember, makes a family.

Arts-Bio Queens- In the Arts, we meet two Bio-Queens from the Fat Bitch Caucus, and they have something to say about self-love versus size-ism.

On The Road-April Mora-Now, Carter Klenk of the Colorado Anti-Violence Project discusses the way local and national media handled the case of April Mora, a 17 year old who reported that three men attacked her and carved "Dyke" and "RIP" on her body with a knife.

On the Road-Womynfest-

In May 2002, three of DTV's producers packed their camera bags, bundled into a mid-sized economy sedan, and went off to explore these so-called United States. Their adventures and what they learned about all the ways to be queer in America are captured in some special segments called Dyke TV on the Road.

Next up, Dyke TV takes us to Missoula, Montana, for Womynfest.

Arts- Black Silk-In the Arts, Dyke TV gets a little sexy with Retha Powers, editor of "Black Silk", a new anthology of Black erotica. We recently joined Retha and some of the contributors to "Black Silk" at an evening book reading ceremony in celebration of this exquisite compilation. Let's hear Retha as she blends her steamy mix.
